Managing and Celebrating Learner Diversity in the Digital Era:
What does a School Leader need to know and learn?

This workshop is designed for school leadership personnel who aspire to address the diverse learning needs of their students, especially in an increasingly digitalised education landscape. Apart from introducing a student data management platform which enables schools to integrate, visualise and analyse existing school data for better planning and evaluation, the Speaker will also explore the potential of a locally developed online inventory on Differentiation Instructions in promoting effective lesson planning and evaluation within and across schools. Participants will have hands-on experience using the data platform to analyse student/school needs, design corresponding plans and engage effectively their teachers in continuous professional development. In-depth and interactive professional dialogues among participants on how to address and celebrate diverse student talents will be conducted from a practical and frontline perspective.

16 June 2021 14:30-17:30

Target Participants: Principals, vice-principals, assistant principals and middle managers in primary and secondary schools

Medium of Instruction: Cantonese (supplemented with English)

Mode: Online via Zoom
